Future outlook

Prices of meat raw material are difficult to predict under cost pressure in primary production. The Group will improve its profitability through its development programmes and passing raw material price increases to sales prices. Rectifying the performance level of the business in Sweden will have a significant impact on the Group during the end of the year.

HKScan maintains the outlook for 2012 which stated that due to the weak development of business in Sweden, there is a risk that the Group's EBIT will come out below the level of 2011. However, including the estimated non-recurring income of fire insurance compensation is very likely to improve the reported EBIT compared to 2011.
